INTRODUCTION

The year 1886 was not particularly notable in the history of Manitoba. Our province and its inhabitants went quietly about their business, untroubled by war, but with a residue of bitterness and controversy still lingering from the Northwest Rebellion and the hanging of Louis Riel. Settlers continued to stream in, many from Ontario, peopling the western part of our province.

The newspapers of the day continued to fascinate after more than a century, as we read about the problems of our forefathers and mothers and noted that some were no different from those we face today. Taxes were too high. There was crime, albeit minor by today's standards. Children were rude and undisciplined. Politics were for men only to discuss. People did not pay enough attention to what was being said from the pulpits. When settlers arrived from places other than those with which inhabitants of Manitoba were familiar, we could read about intolerance of the differences in dress, customs and sometimes religion of the newcomers, with the newspapers using what would today be considered racial slurs to refer to members of the new groups. So many stories, pleasant and not so pleasant, were tempting to read, but in order for indexing to be completed, we had to forgo the pleasure and press on with the work at hand.

Material for this book was obtained by reading all available English and French newspapers printed in the province in 1886. This book is an index only and thus may not contain all of the information which the newspaper has to offer about any event. If there is more than the basic entry to be found in the paper, there will be a notation saying "See page ---". Events indexed pertain to Manitobans and do not include those concerning religious figures, European royalty, etc. unless there is a Manitoba connection. All classified entries of births, marriages and deaths have been included, however, even when the entry bears no apparent connection to Manitoba.

Some entries give a land description as the place where an event occurred. Rural locations in Manitoba are described by three numbers which indicate, in order, the section, township and range where the land is located. Thus, for example, a reference to SE 22-18-6W means that the event took place on the southeast corner of Section 22, Township 18, Range 6 west of the principal meridian. A reference with only two numbers refers to the township and range only.

Staff at the Legislative Library has been, as always, extremely helpful to us and we appreciate their efforts to assist us.

Florence Cox and I did the indexing from the newspapers. Ida Somers entered the data. Lorne Harris is responsible for designing the layout and compiling the various sections of the book. We used the cover designed by the late Gordon Breckman which graces the front of all the volumes in our series of indexes from Manitoba newspapers.

SKETCH MAP

designed to show the successive increases in area of the Province and also the Hudson's Bay Railway (from The Pas to Churchill) and the branch lines to Flin Flon and Cold Lake now in operation. No other railway lines are shewn, and the only place names on the sketch map, which is necessarily small are those that without crowding it will serve its purpose by making the location of the successive boundary lines plain at a glance.
